

June 1, 2007

Hey Everyone!

How are you all? I miss you sooooo much!!! Well, I've been in Mazatlan for a little over a week now and it has been so good to be back here. I took a multi-city flight on the way here and got to spend a few days with friends in Los Angeles and in Mexico City. I've settled in now and starting working on base and reconnected with all of my friends here on base and at my church, Centro de Vida.

My last day at home

Visiting Mari in L.A.

IN MAZATLAN: For now, I am doing a lot of odd jobs. This week I am repainting some of our rooms and last week I did inventory. Right now on base there are very few people so it's pretty quiet and laid back- a perfect time to get the things done that get ignored the rest of the year. Since these sorts of jobs are not my favorite, I am learning a lot about being a servant and having a servant's heart.

TOLERANT ZONE: We still go to the Tolerant Zone every Friday night, so I've been once so far since coming back. A lot has changed in this ministry since

I left. During Carnaval, there were 3 weeks where we didn't go to the Zone at all because we were so busy with our other ministries, and during this time one of our friends was stabbed and killed and we didn't know. The group of guys that we'd been hanging with got really hurt by our absence during that time and now won't talk to us or hang out with us. Besides that, we have built a lot of new relationships. We hung out with a couple of families (they got saved that week before) this past weekend and one of the girls, Luisa, is going to do our internship this summer! Praise God!

PRAYER REQUESTS:

- *for clarity in my position this summer here on base
- *that we could rebuild our lost friendships in the Tolerant Zone
- *that I would have a smooth time adjusting to being staff and not a student

So that is basically all that is going on with me. I would really love to hear back from you. I want to keep up on what is going on in your lives while I'm down here in Mexico. Love and miss ya!

My friends' Mom in Mexico City

God bless,
Cassandra